

Customer Success Story

The New York Yankees keep finance game-ready

Under the lights, the game looks effortless. Behind the scenes, it takes constant coordination to keep a year-round organization moving, especially when the schedule shifts and every department needs answers now. With Sage Intacct, the Yankees finance team always have the numbers to make the right call.

Sage

The finance team behind the scenes

Scott Krug leads the New York Yankees finance team with a simple goal: to make the back office a true partner across the organization. When schedules change and pressure is constant, clear numbers and fast answers keep everything moving. With Sage Intacct, teams can adapt quickly and stay focused on what matters most: performance on the field and the experience in the stands.

Finance at game speed

The New York Yankees are a legacy brand operating at a modern pace. They run in constant motion. Budgets are tight, schedules change, and leaders need answers quickly. Finance has to track activity across 50+ departments and locations, connect spending to accountability, and keep information moving without turning every question into a one-off report.

Before Sage Intacct, too much work lived outside the system. Approvals depended on paper and PDFs. Details required hunting through files. Reporting often meant pulling data out and rebuilding it. With so many teams needing timely answers, finance risked becoming a gate instead of a guide. The pace never slowed, but the process sometimes did.

Sage Intacct gives the Yankees a modern finance foundation that keeps work moving. Approvals are easier to track. Reporting is clearer for budget owners. Teams can drill into the detail behind the numbers without a scavenger hunt. The finance team spends less time on manual blocking and tackling and more time on analysis that helps leaders make smarter calls.

Precision behind the pinstripes

With Sage Intacct, the Yankees bring approvals, banking activity, reporting, and supporting detail into a single environment.

Purchasing workflows are now structured and trackable. Approvals no longer depend on paper handoffs, and requests move forward without the friction of emails, scans, and manual routing.

Finance has clearer visibility into what's waiting, what's approved, and what's next. Bank feeds and transaction handling are more automated, reducing month-end effort. Instead of hunting through PDFs, finance can drill from the numbers to the detail in seconds.

Budget owners get answers they can act on.

Customer Success Story | New York Yankees

The next inning starts now

The Yankees carry a history that comes with expectations. Behind the scenes, finance helps support the organization when plans change and pressure is high, keeping decisions grounded and the operation steady. With Sage Intacct, the team reduces friction and gains clarity. Leaders can act with confidence, knowing the information behind decisions is reliable and up to date, and focus stays on delivering the best possible experience for fans.

For Scott Krug, modernization is about how people use their time. Automation is not a substitute for experience. It reduces manual work so a lean team can spend more time thinking through decisions and supporting the rest of the organization.

Now the finance team can look ahead instead of only looking back. With a connected foundation in place, the Yankees can use AI to surface unusual activity earlier and avoid unnecessary rework, helping the organization maintain the standards it is known for.
