Execution Is Not Enough: Move Toward Empowerment

HR and talent management practitioners are faced today with daunting challenges. Workforces are changing quickly—hierarchies are flatter, career paths are no longer linear, workers are more geographically dispersed, and generational differences are as sharp as ever. Ensuring that you have the right people with the right skills in the right roles and at the right time has a serious impact on your organization’s ability to execute and grow.

Sage helps organizations of all sizes and in all industries to improve Return On Employee Investment (ROEI)™ by increasing employee engagement, productivity, retention, and alignment with organizational goals. It’s that simple. The Sage HRMS approach is based on three concepts:

1. An integrated approach to talent management drives better bottom-line results for your organization. This means having all the components of talent management under the same roof, presented in the same user interface, reportable from the same reporting tools, and administered in a highly flexible way.

2. Learning drives performance at every turn in Cornerstone, because business alignment alone and performance appraisal in isolation are not good enough. Training and development make performance appraisal actionable, succession planning meaningful, and career pathing functional.

3. Sage HRMS Talent Management by Cornerstone OnDemand is a unique combination of on-premise HRMS and Cornerstone’s multitenant Software-as-a-Service (SaaS) talent management solution. Your favorite HRMS solution is now integrated with industry-leading talent management software, all designed for midsized organizations.

Sage HRMS Talent Management covers the employee lifecycle, from onboarding through learning management and performance measurement to succession planning (and even outside to your customers and partners).

Start with the full suite or use either of the two components for learning management or performance management separately. Choose a talent management system that can grow with your needs.
